

Nicholas Barr

Dr Barr is Professor of Public Economics at the London School of Economics and Political Science and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts. He has worked at the World Bank and the IMF, and has been a member of the World Economic Forum's Global Agenda Councils on Demographic Shifts and on Ageing Society, and of the governing bodies of HelpAge International and the Pensions Policy Institute. He has authored over twenty books on the welfare state, health finance and the financing of higher education, including books and articles with Nobel prize winner, Peter Diamond.

Photo: www.roblaceyphotographer.co.uk