Thus, under many aspects, the history of Malta is reflected as a political statement, at others responding to particular age in which they were made and used; at times making heritage, and “Castille” as the seat and symbol of authority.

The history of Malta through the ages are tangible evidence of this phoenicians, but than two millennia. Archaeological evidence indicates that the first coins used in Malta were introduced by the Phoenicians towards the end of the 5th century BC. The Carthaginians, who followed the Phoenicians, were one of a series of nations that occupied the Maltese islands throughout their history.
